Next week the appeal for The Church in Need. Thank you for your support.

Communion antiphon:

Peter said to Jesus:

REFLECTION: - King Herod Agrippa has thrown Peter into prison to await trial and execution to please the Jews. The Jerusalem Church was very discouraged. With James executed and Peter imprisoned, the prospects for the future hardly looked promising. So they all gathered to pray for Peter and, no doubt, for the future of the Church. In answer to their prayer, the night before Peter's condemnation, he was awakened by an angel of the Lord who led him through the prison gates to freedom. Paul had been an accomplished persecutor of the followers of Jesus Christ and was feared for his fanatical commitment to his cause. After his conversion, when Paul started to preach in the city of Jerusalem, he so angered the Greek-speaking Jews that they sought to kill him. It is worth noting that this was the same group that had stoned Stephen to death, the same group that had placed Stephen's clothes at the feet of Saul the persecutor. Now the persecutor had become the persecuted. To save his life, members of the Jerusalem church took him to the Port of Caesarea and shipped him back to Tarsus where he came from. Throughout his ministry, Paul's real pain arose from his awareness that he would never be completely accepted without reservation in his life time as some still suspected him of being a spy planted by his former employers. Peter had denied Jesus three times, but had returned as a rock to strengthen and lead the Christian community. Paul had persecuted Christ but he had changed his ways to become the energetic apostle who pushed the reaches of the Gospel far beyond the confines of Judea and Samaria.

Both men had fallen; both men had risen again to new heights. Paul was Jesus' choice to take his message to the Gentiles. Both apostles were martyred in Rome under the persecution of Emperor Nero. In their final witness, there is nothing doubtful about their love; in the end they are equal in love. Both of them had a love without reserve. In honouring Peter and Paul, we also celebrate the ancient foundation of the Church in Rome, which was to become the mother of all the Christian churches. In their foundation
